

Value Stream Mapping

Learn how to visualise the flow of information and materials needed to bring a product or service to market, and identify waste in the process, on this Value Stream Mapping training course.

This 1-day course teaches delegates how to map a process from end to end, highlighting 'waste' that does not deliver value to the customer and can be removed. The course also explores the 'future state' map that shows the results of removing waste to improve processes. Interactive activities and workshops on the day help delegates to understand and practise these new ideas.

Completion of this course will give students skills to help their organisation increase competitiveness and customer satisfaction through improved processes.
